

---

CHIROPRACTIC RESOURCES

---

REFERENCE BOOKS

Alternative Medicine: The Definitive Guide – REF R 733 A46 2002 The best resource for researching alternative medicine. It provides a thorough description of alternative medicine theories with contributions from leading physicians who explain their treatment programs.

Best Practices In Clinical Chiropractic – REF RZ 241 .B47 1999 An incredibly comprehensive resource that details and explains “Best Practice” strategies in every phase of clinical chiropractic care. Individual essays are provided by a lengthy list of distinguished contributors.

The Desktop Guide to Complementary and Alternative Medicine – REF R 733 D466 2001 An easy to use resource that provides relevant, reliable, thorough, and up-to-date information on all the major complementary and alternative therapies.

Instant Access to Chiropractic Guidelines and Protocols – REF RZ 242.9 .I57 2005 Covers the etiology, diagnosis, and management of a wide variety of conditions that are likely to be seen and treated by chiropractic physicians.

Stedman’s Orthopaedic And Rehab Words: Includes Chiropractic, Occupational Therapy, Physical Therapy, Podiatric, And Sports Medicine – REF RD 723 .S74 2003 This thorough compilation includes over 100,000 entries covering protocols, diagnostic and therapeutic procedures, new techniques, lab tests, clinical research, terms, and abbreviations.

ELECTRONIC JOURNALS

The American Chiropractor <http://www.theamericanchiropractor.com> offers free full-text access to the electronic journal. Searchable by publication date and topic.

Chiropractic Economics <http://www.chiroeco.com/> offers practical business-management and practice-building information for the actively practicing doctor of chiropractic. This site contains editorial guidelines for authors and potential authors willing to share their expertise.

Journal of Manipulative and Physiological Therapeutics (JMPT) <http://journals.elsevierhealth.com/periodicals/yymm> provides information on current developments in therapeutics, reviews of clinically oriented research, and practical information for use in clinical settings. The Journal's editorial board includes some of the world's leading clinical low-back and spine researchers from medicine, osteopathy, chiropractic, and post-secondary education. JMPT publishes peer-reviewed original articles, case reports, journal abstracts, commentary, and new media reviews. Many full text articles are accessible free of charge.

Journal of the Canadian Chiropractic Association <http://www.jcca-online.org/> is the official quarterly publication by the Canadian Chiropractic Association.

WEBSITES

Chiropractic Resource Organization <http://www.chiro.org/> this non-profit Internet organization has existed since 1995. It was developed by a group of chiropractic volunteers dedicated to supplying useful information to chiropractors.

ChiroWeb.Com List of Chiropractic and Other Resources http://www.chiroweb.com/links\_chat/important.html#Online lists web resources, including articles, papers, discussion groups, publications and other online resources. Provided by Chiroweb.com at <http://www.chiroweb.com/>.

ChiroWeb for Students <http://www.chiroweb.com/students/> contains discussion groups and forums, e-classifieds and chiropractic density maps, as well as links to chiropractic colleges around the world.

Index to Chiropractic Literature <http://www.chiroidex.org/> Indexes all chiropractic peer-reviewed journals cover-to-cover, and others topically, using terms from the MeSH Database and CHIROSH (Chiropractic Subject Headings).

National Center for Complementary and Alternative Medicine <http://nccam.nih.gov> from the National Institutes of Health, this site presents information health information, research, training, clinical trials and more.

PROFESSIONAL AND EDUCATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

American Academy of Chiropractic Physicians <http://www.aacp.net> Provides a substantial list of online reference tools, research links, and full-text journals. To access this list, select “Primary Care Links” at the bottom of the homepage.

American Chiropractic Association <http://www.amerchiro.org/> The ACA is a professional organization that provides leadership in health care and a positive vision for the chiropractic profession. This site also provides links to ACA Meetings, State Association Conventions and practice management seminars.

Canadian Chiropractic Association / l'Association Chiropratique Canadienne <http://www.ccachiro.org/> Provides access to both the English and French language site versions. Includes “frequently asked questions” and a chiropractor locator.

Foundation for Chiropractic Education and Research (FCER) <http://www.fcer.org> Select Research from the horizontal navigation bar to view full text articles and information on research grants and funding.

International Chiropractors' Association <http://www.chiropractic.org> Provides legislative, medical and professional news, and other information related the chiropractic field.

National Association for Chiropractic Medicine <http://www.chiromed.org/> The NACM is a professional organization of chiropractic physicians who are dedicated to the scientific advancement and understanding of physical medicine, spinal manipulation, and consumer advocacy.

New York State Chiropractic Association <http://www.nysca.com/> Provides chiropractic information to the public and clinical information to the health care professional.

Student Canadian Chiropractic Association / l'Association canadienne des étudiants en chiropratique <http://www.scca.ca/> Contains news, events, and classified sections. Also contains links to other related web sites, including educational programs, loans and grant opportunities.