
A GUIDE TO STYLE AND CITATION MANUALS

Always be sure to check with your professor before beginning your research, as you may be required to use a specific style for your paper and documentation. Further, be sure to always document anything and everything you borrow for your research, whether it is information, ideas, paraphrases, or direct quotations. You do not want to risk a failing grade and/or plagiarism.

Please be aware that the guides to these manuals are just that: guides. The final authority on any citation style is the manual itself – and it should be referred to for all clarifications.
